a substitute for, properly composed and particularised grounds of appeal. Defective or inadequate grounds of appeal and skeleton arguments can result in inter alia the refusal of leave, delayed judicial determination, loss of priority in the court list and adverse costs consequences.

- 7A. When making an application for leave to appeal under the Extradition Act 2003, the applicant shall lodge with the ex parte motion a skeleton argument fully compliant with [7] above and this Part.
8. Supplemental skeleton arguments may be directed by the court in any case.

hearing and loss of priority in the court system are, inexhaustively, among the repercussions which may result.

Citation and Submission of Authorities

1. The relevant passages within every component of every authorities bundle shall be clearly highlighted (normally in yellow) and every component shall be in hyperlinked form.
2. Where a judgment is reported in the Official Law Reports (N.I.; N.I.J.B.; A.C.; Q.B.; Ch.; Fam.) on behalf of the Council of Law Reporting for Northern Ireland or the Incorporated Council of Law Reporting for England and Wales, that report must be cited. Other series of reports and official transcripts of judgments may only be used when a case is not reported in the Official Law Reports.
3. If a judgment is not (or not yet) reported in the Official Law Reports but is reported in the Weekly Law Reports or the All England Law Reports (All ER), that report should be cited. If the case is reported in both the W.L.R and the All ER, either report may be properly cited.
4. If a judgment is not reported in the Official Law Reports, the W.L.R. or the All ER but is reported in any of the authoritative specialist series of reports which contain a headnote and are made by individuals holding a Senior Courts qualification (for the purposes of section 115 of the Courts and Legal Services Act 1990), the specialist report should be cited.
5. Where a judgment is not reported in any of the reports referred to in paragraphs 1 - 3 above but is reported in other reports, they may be cited.
6. Where a judgment has not been reported, the official transcript may be cited using the neutral citation. Official transcripts may be obtained from, for instance, www.courtsni.gov.uk and www.bailii.org. The handed down version of a judgment should not be used as it may have been subject to later revision. An unreported case should not usually be cited unless it contains a relevant statement of legal principle not found in reported authority.
7. Occasions arise where one report is fuller than another, or where there are discrepancies between reports. On such occasions, the practice outlined above need not be followed but the court should be given a brief explanation as to why this course is being taken and the alternative references should be provided.

8. Where a person is self-represented and is unable to access the Official Law reports, he/she may cite and submit the best case reports that he/she is able to access.

Formatting of electronic documents and creation of electronic books of authorities

To be easily incorporated into the PDF document used by the court, an authority should be provided to the relevant Office listed in Annex G in the following format:

1. As a word document or as part of an unlocked PDF file.
2. If possible, and especially for PDF documents, the text should be converted to Book Antiqua font size 12.
3. Highlighted text and hyperlinks generated by search engines should be removed.
4. Only the relevant portions of statutes and delegated legislation should be provided.
5. If text is not available online, the requisite number of hard copies should be provided.
6. Internet material (for example Blackstone's Online) should be cited in the same format as the hard copy (eg "2011 edn, para D1-137") where possible. Where traditional citation is not possible, internet material should be cited by web address.
7. If a large number of authorities is to be sent and a zipped file cannot be used, the word documents or PDF should be provided on a CD or other commonly used data storage medium such as a memory stick.
8. The skeleton argument and schedules should be provided on a CD or other lockable data storage medium and not sent through the internet in unencrypted form where they contain sensitive information; that is information in relation to which reporting restrictions may be imposed by law or requested by a party.
